Hi Chris,

Our platform receives a feed directly from the FDA's medical device recall database on a daily basis. In contrast, the FDA's public-facing recall announcements are released on a delay. The FDA releases their recall enforcement reports once a week by API – typically on Wednesdays – which means the information available on certain portions of their site may lag behind by several days. Additionally, the specific FDA page you referenced often reflects recalls with a delay of several weeks. For example, the Ethicon Endo-Surgery recall dated 07/25/2025 was actually published in the FDA's internal feed on 05/20/2025. <https://www.accessdata.fda.gov/scripts/cdrh/cfdocs/cfres/res.cfm?id=213517>

For the most accurate and up-to-date information on FDA medical device recalls, I recommend using this FDA search tool:

<https://www.accessdata.fda.gov/scripts/cdrh/cfdocs/cfres/res.cfm>

Just set the date range from your target date to today to view the most current recall data available and click on Search to view all the medical device recalls in the target range. The results will span over several pages so you can either increase the # of results per page or Export to Excel.

Good Morning!

Hope all is well. I am doing a quality check on the FDA recalls that come in through SmartMatches and I am unable to replicate what we are receiving.

I am looking at the SmartMatches I received recently from you. I don't see the Olympus, CooperSurgical, etc. Am I missing something?
